Course Description:

In this seminar, we will explore political action by the largest group of ordinary people in the world -- peasants. Substantively, our topics will range from “everyday forms of resistance,” to nonviolent collective action to outright defiance and insurgency. We will consider work both in the moral economy and the choice-theoretic traditions. We will follow protest activity (mainly in developing countries) from the decision by the first activists to defy authority, through efforts to recruit (or frighten away) potential supporters, to final outcomes. Efforts will be made to draw on theoretical insights and empirical studies conducted by political scientists, historians, sociologists, anthropologists, and historians.

Books available for purchase:

These books are also on reserve at the Main Library. A reader, containing all the other readings listed on the syllabus that are not available on the web, will be made available at a local copy shop (Krishna on Telegraph Avenue)

Course Requirements:

3 seminar papers--Due Monday night at 5pm of the 3 weeks for which a student is responsible. (Copies should be e-mailed to each seminar member and to the instructor). Each paper (approx. 3-4 double-spaced pages) should critically engage the readings assigned for that week. Students may focus on gaps or conflicts in one (or more) reading and may bring in relevant material from other courses. The purpose of these papers is to stimulate class discussion. Papers should not be a summary but rather an effort to highlight an important point, a methodological issue, and/or an assumption that underlies or permeates the reading(s). Efforts should be made to explore ways in which the reading relate to each other and how they help us improve our understanding of politics. During class, each author should be ready to answer questions about the papers and amplify points s/he raised. Hint: When preparing, pretend you are an overburdened student racing to figure out “why this book is so important” the night before your general exams. You might also consider how the readings speak to other areas of political science or peasant politics with which you are familiar (30% of course grade)

2 essays -- The instructor will distribute several essay questions near the end of the semester. Each student will choose two of these questions and will write two 8-10 page essays (2000-2500 words) to be handed in at the scheduled exam time. Most questions will require comparing and contrasting and will typically draw several readings together. Essays should not simply repeat or summarize the readings. Students are allowed (with the instructor’s permission) to replace the questions provided with questions of their own choice. Each essay will count for 20% of the student’s final course grade. Students may also, with the instructor’s permission, replace the final exam with a research paper on a suitable topic. (40% of final grade)

OR

1 15-25 page research paper or a take-home essay exam (40% of final grade)

Class participation--All students will be expected to participate in class discussions and to come to class prepared to consider the seminar papers for that week. (30% of course grade)

January 23) Introduction and Ground Rules

Part I – Classics

January 30) Who are Peasants? How do Rural People Resist Power?

E. J. Hobsbawm, Primitive Rebels: Studies in Archaic Forms of Social Movement in the 19th and 20th Centuries, Chapters 1-6

Seminar Papers:

1)
2)
3)

February 6) Rural Collective Violence: Competitive, Reactive, and Proactive Contention

Charles Tilly, “Contentious Repertoires in Great Britain, 1758-1834,” Social Science History Vol. 17, No. 2 (Summer 1993): 253-80. (moving away from competitive, reactive, proactive classification scheme and defending attention to “repertoires”) (on web)

Elizabeth J. Perry, “Rural Violence in Socialist China,” China Quarterly. No. 103 (September 1985): 414-40. (applying the competitive, reactive, proactive framework to one case) (on web)

Seminar Papers:
1) 2) 3)

February 13) The Moral Economy Perspective

James C. Scott, The Moral Economy of the Peasant (entire but skim more empirical parts)

Seminar Papers:
1) 2) 3)

February 20) Rational Peasants?

Samuel Popkin, The Rational Peasant: The Political Economy of Rural Society in Vietnam, Chapters 1, 2, 6 (read closely), Chapters 3, 4, 5 (read more quickly)

Seminar Papers:
1) 2) 3)

February 27) Everyday Resistance

Empirical Studies (focus on theory over details of specific cases):

Seminar Papers:
1)                                 2)                                 3)

March 6) Interpreting Peasant Tales and Popular Rituals

Robert Darnton, The Great Cat Massacre And Other Episodes in French Cultural History, pp. 3-106.

Seminar Papers:
1)                                 2)                                 3)

Part II – New Approaches and Empirical Studies

March 13) Transnational Agrarian Movements and Globalization

Special Issue of Journal of Agrarian Change, Vol. 7, Nos. 2 and 3 (April and July 2008): 169-514 (focus on the approach and theory, work through empirics quickly) (on web)

Seminar Papers:
1)                                 2)                                 3)

March 20) Power Without Organization: Chinese and Vietnamese Peasants and De-Collectivization

Daniel Kelliher, Peasant Power in China, (Yale, 1992), Chapters 2 and 9 (in reader)

Lucien Bianco, “Weak Weapons,” China Perspectives no. 22 (March-April 1999): 4-16 (in reader)

David Zweig, “Rural People, the Politicians, and Power,” China Journal 38 (July 1997): 153-68 (on web)

Seminar Papers:
1)                                 2)                                 3)

March 27, Spring Break

April 3) Rightful Resistance

April 10) No Class (Instructor Overseas)

April 17) Civil War

April 24) Peasant Resistance and Religion

Richard Wunderli, Peasant Fires (entire)

May 1) Statelessness

James C. Scott, The Art of Not Being Governed: An Anarchist History of Upland Southeast Asia (Yale, 2009), chapters 1, 5, 6, 8, 9

May 15, noon – Take-Home Exam or Research Paper Due! E-Mail To Instructor
Required Books (available for purchase in the Bookstore) ± Introduction to Sociology with Custom MySocLab edited by Hewitt/White/Teevan. ISBN: 1269463853. Contains - Introduction to Sociology: A Canadian Focus, 10/e and an Access Code to your Customized MySocLab or ± MySocLab (Sakai) with eText for Introduction to Sociology: A Canadian Focus, edited by PCP/Hewitt. ISBN: 126943747X. and ± Images of Society 3/e, edited by Carroll and White; plus a Turning Points clicker, sold as a package (must have). Accessing the Class Homepage via Sakai Much of the material for this course has been placed. But since a year now the Kindle book store says that currently this item is not available in Kindle version!!! Why? Follow. (If the book was published before publishers started using computers to prepare books for print, there might not be an electronic version of it, so they'd have to pay someone to retype it and someone else to proofread it.) The book's page on Amazon should have a link that says "tell the publisher I'd like to read this on Kindle". By making a book available for preorder well before release day, you can capture sales from readers as soon as they finish one of your already-published books rather than hoping they'll remember to buy the new book when it goes on sale. This is a particularly useful strategy for driving sales of a new book in a series. I did a serial novel last summer and preorders were essential; I had all the episodes up for preorder as soon as the second book became available [for purchase]. Tamara Lush, author of Into the Heat. Click to tweet: Should You Make a Book Available for Preorder? 14 Authors Weigh In. http://bit.ly/2sN8tsJ by @CarlynRobrtson writetip pubtip. Click to tweet: #Authors: Not sure when to put your next book up for preorder?