One of my first initiatives was the Freight Train Graffiti Show at Winebar Kensington with the very talented photographer Pierre Quinn. I liked that Quinn's photographs were documenting an art form, which is extremely controversial and unconventional. I liked that the art form was transient but became less so in his photographs. While artist Pierre Quinn jokes that his first foray into art was "mostly just to avoid the boring subjects" in school, it was the combination of a university printmaking course, the "FREIGHT TRAIN GRAFFITI," is jam-packed with hundreds of never seen before photographs and features in-depth interviews with more than 100 freight writers and train enthusiasts. From the beginning it was apparent to us that "FREIGHT TRAIN GRAFFITI" is really a story that had to be told by graffiti writers. In the past books focusing on graffiti have been written by onlookers. People who see a part of the culture and are so enthused with it that they see the need to preserve it.
